LOG LINE:

"Chateau Sauvignon: terroir" is a gruesome coming of age story about a vintner son's disobedience and desire to care for his ailing mother.

SYNOPSIS:

"Chateau Sauvignon: terroir" follows Nicolas, the isolated adolescent son of a ruined vintner family, who finds himself torn between obeying his boorish father and saving his ailing mother. When a doting woman and her indifferent son arrive for a wine tasting, Nicolas sees an opportunity to help his mother and prove his worth to his father. However, his wayward plan quickly takes a turn for the worse, putting his family's secretive murderous ways in peril of being unearthed.

LONG SYNOPSIS:

"Chateau Sauvignon: terroir" follows the isolated adolescent son of a storied vintner family who finds himself torn between obeying his father's callous restrictions and preventing his ailing mother from deteriorating further. When a doting woman and her indifferent son arrive seeking a tasting and tour of the winery, Nicolas sees an opportunity to help care for his mother, as well as prove his worth to his choleric father. However, his wayward plan quickly takes a turn for the worse, and his missteps puts his family's secretive murderous ways in peril of being unearthed.

GENRES & NICHE:

Short horror film. Coming-of-age. Slasher. Gothic-gore. Proof of concept. Graduate student thesis project.

DIRECTOR'S STATEMENT:

Welcome,

Over the past few years, my focus has been Producing, primarily short form content of all genres, and for all platforms. Yet, my passion remains Directing, sustained predominantly by the tremendous worldwide festival success and niche critical acclaim of my Master's thesis short film "Chateau Sauvignon: terroir", a gruesome coming-of-age slasher story about Nicolas, a disobedient vintner's son who simply wishes to care for his ailing mother.

This short doubles as both a directorial calling card and a proof of concept in terms of plot, character and visual aesthetic for a larger feature project. Rather than follow a group of victims into a winery from hell, the hook of this slasher story is in keeping the lens on the executioners, Nicolas and his family. Think "Frontier(s)" (2007) meets "We Are What We Are" (2013). Similarly to Haneke's psychological thrillers, this story seeks to explore the unease of human monsters but adds a heavy dose of visceral Cronenbergian body horror.

Regarding the movie's stylistic sensibilities, think "The VVitch" (2015) meets "The Revenant" (2015). Cinematically, this Gothic horror relies heavily on available natural light, and single light sources to create dramatically compositional scenes of chiaroscuro. All coupled with long camera moves and takes to eschew a sense of discomfort, tension, suspense. In drawing influence from the New French Extremity Horror wave as well as their American Splat Pack counterparts, all these elements amass as a powerfully twisted tale, particularly when webbed into a macabre setting with a backwards, self-reliant family of psychopaths...

Moreover, this film is an opportunity to share some gory good times with like-minded genre fans, which I value greatly. Horror audiences are intelligent and loyal, and I hope they will enjoy our morbid tale, as well as be spooked and freaked out by it.

Thank you. Have a bloody good day.

- David M. Night Maire

ABOUT THE PRODUCTION:

“Chateau Sauvignon: terroir” went into production near and around Hudson Valley, New York, in the spring of 2014. It was shot on the RED Scarlet in 5 days, primarily at Benmarl Winery, with a pick up day at Clinton Vineyards.

“Chateau Sauvignon: terroir” is Michael Lorz’s (Nicholas) film screen debut.

Anthony del Negro (Anthony) initially auditioned for the role of Nicholas.

Adrienne Stern, known for “Broken English” (2007), “The Believer” (2001), and “Hellraiser” (2005), was the casting director for the film. Additionally, the film’s Special FX were helmed by head of the makeup department for NBC’s “The Blacklist” (2013-present), Anthony Pepe, also known for his work on “The Hunger Games: Catching Fire” (2013) and “Sharknado 2: The Second One” (2014). Both Adrienne and Anthony worked together on Jeff Lieberman’s 2004 debut feature “Satan’s Little Helper”!

“Chateau Sauvignon: terroir” was awarded a post-production grant from McDonalds.

“Chateau Sauvignon: terroir” is the third student short film written, directed and produced by David M. Night Maire.

FILM STILLS / SCREEN GRABS:

BEHIND THE SCENES PRODUCTION STILLS:

FILM FESTIVAL REVIEWS:

"This little movie packs a big punch. ... The story and premise are very engaging. ... Great horror elements and setting for the story, which was fantastic. ... Excellent flow and pacing. ... The visuals are amazing, as is the set design and the production value. The look and feel of it lent to the creepiness of the story. ... All of the actors were real, believable and layered, while Michael Lorz gives a genuine performance. ... So great to see a filmmaker create such a solid story in a short amount of time and make us feel so much."

- Denise Gossett + Judges Feedback & Comments, Shriekfest Film Festival

"Accomplished and gory, what more could you want from a horror?"

- Persis Love, Programmation & Curation Oaxaca Film Fest

"Take a dash of 'Motel Hell', mix with a helping of Hitchcock's 'Specialty of the House', add a zip of 'Cannibal Holocaust', and serve... Director clearly has a penchant for George Romero and his ilk. ... How truly creepy and disgusting the storyline, atmosphere, and visuals are. ... Art direction and overall look of film was great. ... Music is suitably eerie and evocative for the film. Excellent, engaging story with outstanding performance by the lead."

- Judges Feedback & Comments, McMinnville Short Film Festival

"Location, set and cinematography worked effectively to create a palpably ominous mood. Some scenes were so graphically realistic that the film was difficult to watch. ... With a subtle play of meaning, the title points to a story where the full significance of the circumstances are suggested by image and sound. ... The camera work is visually stunning with the close up shots of faces and angled shots in the wine cellar. Diminished lighting and shadows add to the mood and ambiguity of the story. ... The film works well with tropes of the horror genre."

- Judges Comments, Rochester International Film Festival

"Everything about this film worked making it a good horror film – well directed, shot edited and acted. Very good pacing. Very well done."

- Jury Comments, Underexposed Film Festival yc

"Has this sort of 'Hostel' x 'Texas Chainsaw Massacre' thing to it. ... Gives new meaning to father-son relationships. ... The casting was great, the acting was really good, I liked the aesthetic parts of it. ... Nicely photographed film, one of the better ones that we've seen in a long time. Despite the genre, just a beautifully looking film. ... [Michael Lorz] twists us – we kind of root for him...and all of a sudden he's a killer, and he's a convincing killer at that. Nice twist of emotions. It got me. ... Very well performed, very well executed. ... Threw me for a loop."

- Audience Feedback & Comments, WILDsound Feedback Film Festival

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=opQ46hNBWrA>

"Rich and surprisingly very beautiful approach to something so dark! ... The luscious cinematography and brooding set-up was really refreshing to see amidst the sea of indie films lately."

- Judges Comments, Bloody Horror International Film Festival

"Very, very impressive cinematography from Oliver Lucian Anderson. Michael Lorz was absolutely superb and earned himself a round of applause here in our office. This is a gem of a horror. It's an original idea and has been extremely well executed. It's quite amazing how you can actually route for the killer just because one of the victims is hooked to his cell phone and rude to his mother! Scary! ... Very, very well done to all involved."

- Andrew Hannon + Judges Comments, 13Horror.com Film Contest

"A finely crafted creepy short. Very well filmed. Nice acting and pacing. Good job all around!"

- Jeremy Jantz + Judges feedback & Comments, PDXtreme Fest

"Thanks to an accurate historical reconstruction, magnificent photography and perfectly evoking both the sensations of the time and those of the discomfort of the story told, the short film impressed with the ability to tell a crude story elegantly and very dramatically through measured and effective direction of the actors."

- Festival Comments, Smallmovie Festival

"A magnetic and creepy performance by Michael Lorz paired with stunning visuals from Cinematographer Oliver Lucian Anderson, this film is a short horror film masterpiece."

- Mikel Fair, Oregon Scream Week

<https://filmfestivalcircuit.com/film/chateau-sauvignon-terroir/>

"Really nice job. Congrats ... all of us here are done with red wine now."

- Rowan Sutherland, Festival Director at BlastOff

"A testament to the visionary brilliance of the director, whose creative vision shines through every frame... The visual effects serve the story, seamlessly blending with the practical elements to create a visually cohesive experience... The film is a tour de force, seamlessly blending genres and pushing the boundaries of storytelling."

- Judges Comments, Student World Impact Film Festival

"Dark, brooding, and macabre... A sinister twist on the typical 'coming into the family business' story. Masterfully crafted, and a very brutal spectacle. Very happy to have experienced 'Chateau Sauvignon: terroir' on the big screen."

- Festival Comments, DreadFest Horror Film Festival

"Very surprising little short. With a well put together film set, great costuming, and a decent storyline. Definitely consider this short for an award."

- Festival Comments, Festival Judge at Artody's Film Festival

"'Chateau Sauvignon: terroir' chilled us to the core—in the best possible way. From its atmospheric tension to its unsettlingly elegant execution, it is a standout... The jury was unanimous in its reaction: 'Chateau Sauvignon: terroir' is a masterclass in slow-burn dread with a deliciously dark finish... It was truly unforgettable."

- Carah Chafin & Devon James, Dreadhead Productions Horror Film Festival Director & Organizer

"The student film, Chateau Sauvignon: terroir, stood out to us as a strong and compelling piece of horror. There's a distinct voice and atmosphere in the work that we found both engaging, memorable and terrifying. Really enjoyed the quality of costumes, makeup, and blood fx."

- Lisandro Boccacci, Festival Director at Stay Gold Film Festival

ONLINE MAGAZINE & JOURNAL REVIEWS:

"A great piece of work with expertly handled camera work, direction, sound cues, acting. ... Director Maire's style reminds us [of] the best cult directors of the last century. It's not that usual to find such a good suspense and thrilling in a young director's short work. ... I recommend keeping an eye on the work of Maire as he could be the next big thing in horror."

- Frank Moran, Horror Galore

<http://www.horrorgalore.com/product-review/chateau-sauvignon-terroir-great-short-movie>

"The film absolutely oozes atmosphere. ... David M. Night Maire's direction is striking and the screenplay...is taut. His short film satisfies all on its own while it left me wanting to see more of this unconventional family and its grim story."

- Joseph Perry, Gruesome Magazine

<http://gruesomemagazine.com/2015/11/14/chateau-sauvignon-terroir-2015-macabre-short-film-serves-up-vintage-fright/>

"What struck me most...is how well it was all put together. ... From the acting...to the excellent look of the film, which matches a lot of well-funded theatrical releases, and just the overall professionalism and direction of the film. ... I wished some filmmakers of full-length features would take a note...in how to at least execute a story because this short does it right."

- TJ Fowler, Skull Banger

<http://skullbanger.net/2015/10/30/short-film-review-chateau-sauvignon-terroir/#more-6892>

"I cannot express enough how rare it is, once you've been a horror fan for long enough, to find things that actually scare you anymore. ... There was enough buildup for it to definitely have an impact...this short actually made me squirm. ... Even in less than 15 minutes, [Chateau Sauvignon: terroir] has more to offer than the average slasher."

- Chassity, The Horror Honeys

<http://www.thehorrorhoneys.com/2015/11/chateau-sauvignon-terroir-why-does-time.html>

"I really wanted more. The acting, the simplicity of murder the reasons behind it, all so powerful...and it delivered beyond what I expected."

- Jacob Craig, Sinful Celluloid

<http://www.sinfulcelluloid.com/2016/01/chateau-sauvignon-terroir/>

"Rarely do I walk away thinking 'Man I hope this gets made into a full length feature'. ... I was immediately struck by the images. The shots and the production design. Apparent from the first frame. ... The director get's into our heads right away. ... Maire has got skill and if the few short films he has made are any indication of his future, it's very bright. I look forward to seeing what comes next from this talented director and really enjoyed this film."

- Josh Holland, The Terror Time

<http://www.thterrortime.com/review-short-film-chateau-sauvignon-terroir/>

"[The film's] simple yet impacting plot of a rural family who makes wine out of something unlikely and a son who wants to care for his ailing mother kept me intrigued from start to finish. Even with its few scenes, "Chateau" had nearly all of the audience wincing."

- Zach Ritz, The Quad

<http://www.wcuquad.com/6006266/entertainment/terror-visits-media-pa/#sthash.759HjNbH.j6evJHHx.dpbs>

"Maire's "Chateau Sauvignon: terroir" feels like a much classier version of "The Texas Chainsaw Massacre", but is no less brutal... A fantastic short film that is atmospheric and delightfully gruesome. ... I hope... Maire considers turning this concept into a feature-length Horror film!"

- The Vault Master, The B-Movie News Vault

<http://www.bmovienewsvault.com/2017/03/the-b-movie-news-vaults-indie-filmmaker-20.html>

"This short horror film has many things going for it starting with the location and atmosphere. ... There's a creepy feel to the film right from the start. ... Michael Lorz does a great job portraying the son. ... The nice slow build of the film leads to a horrific ending. ... It's easy to see why "Chateau Sauvignon: terroir" has won so many awards."

- HorrO, Promote Horror: HorrO's Gory Reviews

<http://horrosgoryreviews.blogspot.com/2017/03/chateau-sauvignon-terroir-review.html>

"The film's ... rather unsettling ... shots emphasize the quality of the set design. The audio track is nicely mixed ... with a less is more approach and it pays dividends... The score is subtle, the performances are engaging... [The] effects team did a commendable job... plenty of attention to detail and some evocative color grading."

- Adam Paul Webber, Adam the Movie God

<https://adamthemoviegod.com/chateau-sauvignon-terroir-review-its-a-family-balance/>

"Everything about this short just works... The acting is great... The winery is both beautiful and haunting... Chateau Sauvignon: Terroir is a coming-of-age film with a sharp edge. You'll find its bloody finale to be quite intoxicating."

- John Migliore, Indie Horror Online

<https://indiehorroronline.wordpress.com/2018/11/27/chateau-sauvignon-terroir-2016/>

"'Chateau Sauvignon' certainly leaves an uneasy feeling. ... Each shot and sound more meticulously crafted than the previous. My prediction is that we'll be seeing the cast and crew's names become a staple of new Hollywood.

- Sean Ellis, Crypt Teaze

<https://www.crypt-teaze.com/single-post/2019/01/28/Review-David-E-M-Maires-Short-Film-Chateau-Sauvignon-Terroir>

"A beautifully savage narrative. ... Maire uses his lens to leave his viewers' senses heightened. ... A story so engaging and yet horrific, that it can only be described as blissfully bloody... A brilliant short film."
